I have worked as a consultant for more than 11 years. Most of this time I have acted as a full stack developer and team lead. During my last 6 years I have had a focus on frontend development in Typescript and React. I am very passionate about my work and love to create responsive and maintainable solutions.

The last years I have focused on mastering a frontend stack revolving around React, but I see myself as a very flexible developer. As long as my work is challenging and I get to work in a creative environment, I will feel right at home.

Another aspect of my work i thoroughly enjoy is teaching others and helping the entire team get onboard with sound development practices. I feel right at home when I can help the people around me improve their routine with software development.

As a person I'm easy going and sociable. In my experience this is a very important trait for a software engineer. Much of software development comes down to communication, both between the product owner and team, as well as within the team. Being able to understand each other clearly helps immensely in any project.
